

On reflection

Mirrors cannot lie, they say – but they can perform all sorts of marvellous deceptive tricks in your home, from enhancing light and doubling space to rendering objects invisible. Here are our four favourite ideas for using them

Words AMY BRADFORD

Room at the top This space is already quite lofty, but a mirrored ceiling makes it look twice the height. The dazzling optical illusion of the room recreated above one's head makes this a perfect idea for closet Surrealists (note the corning, which looks like a set of steps). It would also transform a low-ceilinged room into something much more impressive.

PICTURES: JOSEPH TOMASSINI | THIS PAGE | SHANNON MCGIBATH / FWD ARCHITECTS | OPPOSITE | ARTWORK: LE CERCLIE FERME BY MARTINE FEJEL AND JEAN BECHAMEL | THIS PAGE